Activities

- Look at the pictures on the word list page at the end of the book. Sign the names of some of the items pictured, then have your child find those items and fingerspell the corresponding words.
- Draw a traffic light. Let your child color the lights (red, yellow, green) then write what each color means (e.g., stop, prepare to stop, go).
- Cut out pictures of police officers from magazines or newspapers. Glue the pictures on a piece of paper, then ask your child to list beside each picture the different activities that police officers do.
