

Celebrating Martin Luther King Jr. Day: Dreaming of Change

Written by Joel Kupperstein.

Illustrated by Fred Willingham.

Copyrighted © 1999 by Creative Teaching Press, Inc.

All rights reserved. Used by permission of Creative Teaching Press, Inc.

Produced under Chapter 1 of Title 17, section 121 of the U.S. Code (Copyright Act).

Any further reproduction or distribution in a format other than a specialized format is an infringement of copyright.

Activities

- With your child, look at pictures in magazines of people of different colors or race. Ask your child how he or she is the same and how he or she is different.
- Help your child cut out pictures from magazines of different people working together or doing things together. He or she can make a collage and put a title (e.g., "We can work together" or "We can (activity) together").
- With your child, make a list of ways of being nice to other people. Put it on the refrigerator door or study table. Encourage your child to check off ways from the list or put stars next to them as they do each.

Read More About It!

If you and your child enjoyed this book, look for these related titles at your local library or bookstore: A Picture Book of Martin Luther by David Adler, Martin Luther King, Jr.: A Biography for Young Children by Carol H. Schlank and Barbara Metzger, Martin Luther King, Jr. by Peter and Connie Roop, Young Martin Luther King, Jr.: "I Have A Dream" by Joanne Mattern, and My First Martin Luther King Book by Dee Lillegard.

